RE: Travel Award for Emerging Researchers' Attendance at the ISAAC 2018 Biennial Conference

Once again, we are pleased to advise that ISAAC has funding available to provide emerging researchers with financial support to attend the 18th Biennial Conference of ISAAC on Gold Coast, Queensland, Australia, July 21st – 26th, 2018.

ISAAC recognizes the need to promote research in augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) throughout the world and to provide incentives to those involved in innovative AAC research. Providing financial support that allows early career researchers to attend ISAAC Conferences is an important aspect of ISAAC's ongoing work in the field of AAC. The successful candidates will be expected to attend and present their research at the main conference.

While ISAAC will not be able to provide 100% funding for every qualified applicant, we will evaluate all submissions and provide what would be meaningful financial assistance to as many suitable applicants as we can. Please note applications can only be accepted from ISAAC members in good standing who meet a range of criteria for this competitive award. The applications are judged on their merits by the Research Committee of ISAAC. Only applicants who have already submitted Conference 2018 abstracts are eligible to apply. Please be sure to submit a copy of your abstract with this application.

Please complete and submit the attached application and supporting documents by email to emergingresearcher@isaac-online.org by 5:00 p.m. on 15th December 2017 EST (Eastern Standard Time).

We look to receiving your application, and to meet and network with a promising group of emerging researchers in AAC at ISAAC Conference 2018.

Best regards,

Kerstin Jönsing
