

Second East Asian Regional Conference on Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC): Uniting local and international perspectives

第二屆輔助溝通系統東亞區域學術研討會：聯合在地和國際觀點

Taipei, Taiwan, November 15–17 2019

Information and Call for Posters and Papers

There is much evidence that augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) can improve communication and language development in children and adults with little or no speech. They have learned to express their thoughts, wishes and ideas with manual signs and graphic symbols and characters, as well as to understand better the thoughts, wishes and ideas of other people. Many have improved their spoken language with the use of AAC.

The Conference will discuss international and local issues related to AAC of importance East Asian countries. All topics related to AAC are welcome, such as: Groups of children who need AAC, assessment of individuals with little or no speech, strategies for promoting language and communication in children with various disabilities, vocabulary, sentence construction and analyses of conversations with AAC, AAC in preschool, school and home, AAC systems and technology, individual case studies, intervention to reduce behaviour disorders and challenging behaviour, parent guidance and support, and organization of AAC in East Asian countries
